Dear Dr. Kloss:

Your letter of February 3, 1970, requesting information on the possibility of Guam changing its political status has been referred to me by the Guam Chamber of Commerce.

The First Constitutional Convention of the Territory of Guam was created by law in 1968 to study Guam's fundamental law, the Organic Act, and to recommend changes for improvement and up-dating.

In the Organic Act Guam is defined as an unincorporated territory of the United States. The Convention's Political Status Committee is investigating other political alternatives which may be feasible in the future.

I have enclosed news releases which have to do with the activities of the Political Status Committee and a copy of the brochure which explains the five alternatives which the committee is proposing for consideration.

If you would like any further information on the Convention or on the Political Status Committee, I will be happy to oblige.

Sincerely yours,

Ruth Ann Gilliam
Public Information Officer
